In a paper on The Nuclear Charges of Atoms, published in the Physical Review of May, 1917 (9,383), it was shown that on the same assumptions regarding the electrons which emit X-rays it is possible to compute the nuclear charges of the radiating atoms by means of Moseley's equations for X-ray frequency, and that these charges are, as suggested by van den Broek, simple multiples of the unit electrical charge. It is the purpose of the present paper to discuss the spectral series of hydrogen on the same...
