Not illustrated. 1906 Excerpt: . . . only takes us as far as 1821, and the memorable decade which followed the retirement of Lord Sidmouth, the astonishing upiaretta of Canning, the triumph of OConnell, and the storming of the Torres Vedras, in which Wellington had entrenched himself, are not illuminated by his incisive running commentary. Yet we may well be grateful for what we have got. The editor, Lord Stavordale, has performed his modest part with the efficiency and brevity that his industry in following the career of Lady Sarah Lennox through her delightful and valuable Letters has taught students to expect. Presumably to his judgment we owe in this volume the most welcome inclusion of the supplementary chapter, Miscellaneous Recollections (begun in 1826), in which Lord Holland has recorded his impressions of those persons who, whether Englishmen or foreigners, without immediate connection with politics, acquired or deserved celebrity for genius or talent, learning or wit, in science, in art, in poetry, in literature or in conversation. And what an interesting list it is: for here we pass from Hookham Frere, Dean Cyril Jackson, and Dr. Parr to Porson, John Hunter, Hare, Gibbon, Dr. Johnson, Mitford, Reynolds, Flaxman, the Edinburgh Reviewers, The Lake Poets, and Byron. And the volume closes with four valuable appendices, the last of which is well calculated to stir the ever-hot ashes of the Junius controversy. Of Lord Holland himself it is scarcely necessary to speak. The Memoir and the Recollections amply confirm what we knew already of his...
